Getting your cake ready for transport

Protect the shape, keep the cake flat and arrange the cold until the finish.

Check before departure

The journey is prepared as soon as the recipe is chosen. Find out more about the cooled space on arrival and the possibility of setting up the latest decors on site.

• Choose a rigid holder and a box whose lid does not touch the finish.

• Maintain the box and support to avoid lateral movement.

• Pack the fragile sets separately and plan their installation at destination.

Organize the cold

Preparations containing sensitive ingredients must maintain suitable cold conditions. The general recommendation is that the refrigerator should be cooled down to a low temperature. 4 °C .

• Put the cake cold before packing according to its recipe.

• Use an insulated solution adapted to the size of the box and the length of the journey.

• Control the actual conditions with a thermometer; air conditioning alone does not prove the cold hold.

• Limit waiting to room temperature and provide storage on arrival.

Load flat

Install the box on a horizontal, clean and stabilized surface. A sloping seat lets the cake lean. Check the placement before starting.

• Wear the cake with both hands.

• Avoid direct sunlight, sudden braking and objects that may fall on the box.

• Choose a route as direct as possible.

Receive

Upon arrival, check the box and holding of the cake, then store it according to the requirements of its fillings. Never deduce its safety from the fact that the cream still seems firm.

• Note a possible break in the cold and ask for an appropriate opinion before service in case of doubt.

• Install fragile elements just before presentation.

• This guide does not validate maximum travel time or shelf life; it depends on the recipe and measured temperatures.
